

ISBN-zzz-zzz

Library of Congress zzz

Credits and Acknowledgments

Sources and credits are given in footnotes, as appropriate, and in the text. In addition the author expresses appreciation to the following individuals and other entities who helped in the ways indicated:

INDIVIDUALS

Joseph Adamski furnished images of bills of state-chartered banks.

Jane Beckman, Sandwich historian, helped with certain matters on that town's past. • Larry Berkson of the Pittsfield Historical Society provided information concerning the Carpenter and Goss families and other matters relating to the Pittsfield Bank and the Pittsfield National Bank • Nicole Bermensolo helped with research at the Smithsonian Institution • Mrs. William Burns helped with research conducted in Amherst.

Frank Campbell, librarian, American Numismatic Society, assisted with 19th century publications including copies of all bank note reporters relating to New Hampshire in the ANS Library • Ronald L. Castro provided information concerning currency plate letters and numbers • Robert Cochran provided biographical information for several subjects, sent illustrations of notes and banks, and helped in other ways • Ruth Colby loaned a stereograph image •

Philip Decelle, Wolfeboro Historical Society, provided historical data. • Tom Denly provided information concerning serial numbers, plate letters, etc. • Richard ("Dick") Dolloff provided photocopies of hundreds of bills he has studied or handled, comprising one of the most important outside contributions to the present work.

Craig Evans, curator of the Sandwich Historical Society, made the Society's records available for detailed study, including much information about the Carroll County Bank and the Carroll County National Bank.

C. John Ferreri shared information and images from his files and extensive collection and helped in other ways. • The late Leonard Finn communicated with Bowers extensively in the 1970s • Arthur M. Fitts III provided images of items in his collection • Kathy Fuller-Seeley suggested avenues of research •

Bruce Hagen assisted with information from his files, especially relating to early and state-chartered bank currency • Robert M. Hastings sent information regarding certain National Bank notes • Warren S. Henderson shared information relating to his impressive collection of New Hampshire state chartered bank and National Bank currency, provided a file of historical notes assembled over a period of more than four decades, and made valuable suggestions. He was a central contributor to the project. • Henry T. Hettger did extensive, indeed incredible research in the National Archives involving documents of the Treasury Department, Comptroller of the Currency, and reports of federal examiners for every National Bank in New Hampshire, involving many thousands of papers and documents; in addition he searched Justice Department and Federal Bureau of Investigation files re: the 1918 events in Jaffrey, New Hampshire • The late John Hickman shared information on New Hampshire National Bank notes • Malcolm Holbrook provided information concerning several notes • James Hughes, of the Museum of American History, Smithsonian Institution, and his staff, and curator Dr. Richard Doty, made it possible for our researchers to examine and photocopy all of the proof sheets of National Bank notes relating to New Hampshire as well as obsolete and colonial notes, many hundreds of items totally, many of which had never been closely studied before • Danielle Hunt helped with research at the Smithsonian Institution • Peter Huntoon provided valuable data concerning Treasury deliveries of National Bank notes by dates, destinations, and designs from research in the National Archives and other repositories. He also helped with many questions and technical details concerning bank note printing and issuance, in all making exceedingly important contributions to the present work. • Warren D. Huse, curator of the Laconia Historical and Museum Society, Inc., provided much historical information regarding Meredith, Meredith Bridge, Lake Village, Lakeport, and Laconia •

Karl Kabelac sent copies of bankers' directory listings • Russell Kaye provided images of certain proof notes • Don C. Kelly provided certain information from annual reports of the Comptroller of the Currency and shared his detailed and extensive data base of New Hampshire National Bank notes (in turn, information gained by the present authors was shared with him). He also answered many questions and helped in numerous other ways. • Lyn F. Knight provided plate and other details of currency in his auction sales. • Dave Koble provided plate letters and numbers and other information concerning bills he had examined • Barbara L. Krieger, Dartmouth College Library, provided information about the Dartmouth National Bank.

Kevin Lafond provided suggestions to the authors, furnished many notes for illustration and study, and helped in many other ways. Concurrently with the present work by Bowers and Sundman, Lafond is creating a separate but complementary study on fractional and scrip notes issued in the state of New Hampshire. • Lawrence Lee, past curator of the Byron Reed Museum (Omaha) and the American Numismatic Association Museum, shared images and information • Jess Lipka provided a note for study

Hugh C. MacDougall shared his research concerning Samuel Dakin • Donald Munro provided a newspaper clipping pertaining to the Souhegan National Bank of Milford

Eric P. Newman corresponded concerning colonial era and other early notes

Helen and V.H. Oswald provided items for study.

John M. Pack assisted with information concerning note varieties • Gary Parietti provided notes for study • Rick Petrucci provided plate number information for two notes. • Thomas M. Prince provided archival data on certain Portsmouth banks, made available his unpublished book-length manuscript, A History of the Portsmouth National Bank 1824-1975, and shared other information as well.

Fred L. Reed III helped with suggestions and publicity and encouraged the project in many ways • Wayne S. Rich, of Concord, N.H., who began his interest in numismatics in 1939, enjoyed coins, tokens, medals, and paper money until the time of his passing in 2002. From about the 1960s onward he gathered clippings, photocopies of currency, archival material, and more, with the intention of creating a text on New Hampshire paper money for the Society of Paper Money Collectors. As events would have it, no manuscript was ever created. However, Wayne's daughters gave his files to the authors, and certain of his work has been utilized in the present text. Certainly, had Wayne lived longer, he would have been a vital part of the project. • Dianne Rogers of the Wolfeboro Historical Society assisted with information.

Stephen H. Schofield, Centennial Auctions, provided several items for illustration • Jim Seppala, of the Lancaster National Bank, discussed certain aspects of the institution's history. • Barbara Stepanek helped with research conducted in Amherst. • Bethany Sundman, daughter of David, helped with research at the Smithsonian Institution and on visits to private collections. • Tom Surina provided notes for study

Paul Tardiff furnished a newspaper item concerning the Berlin National Bank • Frank Teas provided information about the banking history of Nashua.

Steven Whitfield of the SOMPC corresponded concerning the project and also supplied several vignettes of a bank building. • Richard Winslow III provided many suggestions, much research information, and many historical citations from 19th century newspapers and periodicals, particularly pertaining to state-chartered banks

Vicken Yegparian of Stack's provided images of certain proof notes.

Elizabeth Zaring furnished biographical information.

INSTITUTIONS AND ORGANIZATIONS

American Antiquarian Society • American Numismatic Association Library and Museum (Jane Colvard and Nancy Green; loan of numismatic texts and catalogues relating to paper money and collectors; Lawrence Lee, museum curator) • American Numismatic Society (Frank Campbell; copies of numismatic texts and catalogues relating to paper money and collectors)

Dartmouth College Library, Barbara L. Krieger, provided information about the Dartmouth National Bank.

Exeter Historical Society (historical information) • Exeter Public Library (historical information)

The New Hampshire Bank (information from its records and archives)

Laconia Historical and Museum Society, Inc. (historical information) • Melissa Lamotte (Littleton Coin Co.) assisted the authors with research, visits to libraries and archives, correspondence, and the quintessential aspects of support, energy, and enthusiasm • The Lebanon Historical Society, Inc. (photograph) • Library of Congress (historical information) • Littleton Public Library (directories, archives)

Massachusetts Historical Society

Nashua Public Library (Kathleen Lukasik) • National Archives • New Hampshire Historical Society (William Copeley, David Smolen, and Philip Abbot; a vast repository of original records and documents, as cited) • New Hampshire State Library (legislative and legal records, manuscript records of the State Bank Commission 1837 onward, written state bank reports 1814 onward, directories, and more).

Ossipee Historical Society (Arletta Paul) permitted examination and photography of certain items relating to the Pine River Bank of Ossipee

Pittsfield Historical Society provided information concerning Pittsfield banks and people (see Larry Berkson under individuals above) • PhilaMatic Center (Boys Town, Omaha, information shared with Wayne S. Rich, 1980) • Portsmouth Athenaeum • Portsmouth Library

Sandwich Historical Society provided information concerning the two currency-issuing banks once located in that town. • Society of Paper Money Collectors • Smithsonian Institution (see Individuals above)

Wolfeboro Historical Society (Christine Fipphen; access to the files and records of 19th century Wolfeboro banks, in the early 1990s; Philip Decelle and Dianne Rogers, access to files for the present study) • Wolfeboro Public Library (assistance with inter-library loan material)

ILLUSTRATIONS

In each instance, illustrations, including currency, are credited to the collection or other source from which they were obtained, exceptions being specimens from the holdings of the author and Warren S. Henderson, which are not specifically attributed. Otherwise, citations appear as, for example [Wayne Rich].

Certain issues of New Hampshire currency are very scarce, and the authors are deeply appreciative to the collectors, societies, and museums who shared their treasures.